A

Susan: Well, my parents wanted to go in museums and churches all day.

Mike: But museums can be interesting.

Susan: Yes, I know. One or two museums in a summer is OK but I think I saw twenty museums.

Mike: Oh no. Well, did you have a good time in Wales?

Susan: Yes, that was great. I went on an adventure holiday there.

Mike: An adventure holiday? What's that?

B

Susan: Yes, we did. And what did you do in the summer?

Mike: Oh, I went on an adventure holiday, too.

Susan: Did you? Where did you go?

Mike: I went to Poland and that was a real adventure.

Susan: Why?

Mike: We don't speak Polish.

C

Mike: Hi Susan. Did you have a good summer?

Susan: Yes, it was good. I went to Italy with my parents and then I went to Wales.

Mike: Oh, Italy. That's nice.

Susan: Well, it wasn't so good. The food was good and the weather was good but the holiday was a bit boring.

Mike: Boring? Why?

D

Susan: Oh, we did lots of sports. We tried abseiling and we sailed and climbed.

Mike: Wow. I'd like to try that. Was it good?

Susan: Yeah. It was great.

Mike: Did your parents sail, too?

Susan: No, it was just for people from 11 to 14. All the girls slept in one bedroom and all the boys in another. And we had parties at night with candles and cakes.

Mike: Did you stay for a week?

Radio Bus on tour

The Radio Bus was on tour again last week, when it visited Town School in Scotland. It stopped there for two days. The bus has 20 computers on board where the students can work. They can surf the internet, download pictures and music, work on projects and chat with friends or send them e-mails. But the most interesting part is always the small radio studio on the bus. Students from year 5-7 were very excited. They go into groups to visit the big blue bus, and worked on different tasks².

Year 5 started on Monday morning. Their task was to work on the topic "My way to school". First everybody worked alone to find out about questions like: How far is it to school? Are there any dangerous roads? Must I go by bus or can I walk? Some of the students even made maps³ on the computer to describe their way to school. Then they reported to the other students. The results were interesting.

On Monday afternoon it was Year 6`s turn. They practised presentation because they wanted to get better. They practised with cameras. This was difficult because it was the first time for most students. But they knew how important it is to learn to give better presentations. So they worked hard. Then they watched the films, talked about the presentations, and made them better.

Year 7 was on the bus on Tuesday morning. Their task was to prepare a school trip to London. They surfed the internet for information. One group found out about museums in London. A second group looked for information about a sightseeing tour. Group three collected ideas an interesting day trips for London Bridge. And the last group found out about the train times and how much a return ticket is.

And on Tuesday afternoon? On Tuesday afternoon the small radio studio was open for all students. And everybody could ask for their favourite song on the radio. That was great! Everybody had fun on the Radio Bus.
